

Automobile Accident Checklist

- MEDICAL ATTENTION – Determine if there are any injuries and call 911 immediately to report the accident and get medical attention.
- SAFETY – Move to a safe location if your car is creating a safety hazard or obstructing traffic. Put on your flashing hazard lights.
- COMMENTS - At the scene, be courteous and polite but do not admit fault. Don't make any comments to anyone about the accident except to the Police. When the Police arrive, be honest and cooperate by stating the facts, avoid guessing, making admissions or giving your opinions.
- IDENTIFICATION - Give your name, address, vehicle registration number, and upon request, your driver's license and insurance information to any other party to the accident and to the police officer. Get the same information from the other driver(s).
- WITNESSES - Get witnesses' names, addresses, phone numbers, comments, etc.
- TAKE NOTES - Make your own written notes to help you remember the facts.
- TAKE PHOTOS - Take pictures of the accident scene and the damage to the vehicles, if you have a camera with you and you are able to safely do so. Your cell phone may also be able to take pictures or videos.
- DON'T LEAVE - Unless you are seriously injured or have to go with an injured person, don't leave unless the police officer leaves or tells you to leave.
- UNATTENDED VEHICLES - If you collide with an unattended vehicle or other property, you must STOP as above and either locate the owner or leave a conspicuous written notice for the owner giving the name and address of the driver and owner of your vehicle, the registration number of the vehicle you are driving, and a statement of the circumstances, and then notify the nearest police authority as soon as possible.
- SEEK MEDICAL ATTENTION - Although you may feel fine now or think your injuries aren't very serious, symptoms such as the following can appear days after the accident: Pain, Discomfort, Dizziness, Numbness. Getting medical attention quickly isn't just the best thing for your health; it also strengthens your personal injury claim.
